WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The tentative draft of an administration bill to carry out President Roosevelt's anti-inflation program may call for both farm price and wage stabilization as of September 1, with provision for adjustment of inequities, it was disclosed today.

The bill, which will be thrust before the Senate tomorrow, is being whipped into shape with the aid of administration legislative experts.

The congressional "farm bloc" appeared ready to capitulate to President Roosevelt's demand for anti-inflation legislation by October 1, but demanded direct congressional action on wage stabilization as a price for the surrender.

A White House conference between Mr. Roosevelt and the congressional "big four" is expected either today or tomorrow.

Both Speaker Rayburn of the House and Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley returned to Washington today to guide the administration battle for legislation.

Typical farm bloc reaction was that of Sen. Gillette (D) Iowa. Gets Highest Honor

Lieut. John J. Powers, 30, above, United States Navy pilot from New York, has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously for his feats in the Battle of the Coral Sea. President Roosevelt told his Labor Day "fireside chat" how Lieutenant Powers, after bombing and sinking several Jap ships during the first two days of the battle, flew so low when he dive-bombed an enemy aircraft carrier on the third day that his own plane was destroyed in the explosion.

U. S. TURNING STERNER FACE TOWARD VICHY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — A stiffening of the American government's attitude toward Vichy was seen today in the sharp and instantaneous rebuke delivered to French Premier Pierre Laval in response to his protest against the Anglo-American bombing of German military objectives in France.

Laval was warned that French factories which work for Germany will be bombed "at every opportunity in the future." No distinction was drawn between occupied and unoccupied France. Laval was told, in effect, that the Anglo-American air forces will bomb German military objectives wherever they are found.

There were strong indications in official quarters in Washington that the United States government is getting fed up not only with Laval's frequent protests, but with the general unfriendly tone of the Vichy French press toward this country.

The French newspapers, including Laval's own organ, the Clermont-Ferrand Moniteur, have engaged in a new wave of anti-American propaganda in recent days.

Laval's Moniteur has been publishing a series of scornful articles about America's moral and industrial situation, while other Vichy-controlled papers have implied that the United States and Great Britain are threatening French interests in West Africa.

VINELAND, N. J., Sept. 9 — Production of surgical supplies for the War department was halted today by a strike of 2,400 workers at the Kimble Glass company in Vineland with only foremen and maintenance men still at their jobs.

Officials of the American Flint Glass Workers union, AFL, said the walkout was "strictly voluntary" and not authorized by the union. National officers of the union were expected to arrive today from Toledo, O., to try to settle the dispute.

Company spokesmen explained that a contract with the union expired Monday but that the workers were expected to continue operations pending a new agreement. Picketing unionists said the strike was for "higher wages" and to protest "stalling tactics."

One of the bodies recovered was that of Mrs. Jane Weston, owner of one of the ruined buildings into which the plane's gasoline tank fell and exploded. The other body was as yet unidentified.

Other, known dead were listed as four members of the plane's crew, two other men aboard the bomber and a woman. They were: Col. Douglas M. Kilpatrick, 33, of Houma, La., pilot.

RELIEF COSTS FOR OHIO DROP TO RECORD LOW

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9 — Ohio's relief expenditures for August probably hit a new all-time low due to the continued upswing of wartime employment, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said today on the basis of incomplete reports from 108 of the state's 154 local relief areas.

Sherwood estimated the August cost of $847,000, or a nine percent drop from the previous low established only a month earlier, when $939,639 was expended. The case load also decreased from 29,889 recipients in July to approximately 29,200 last month.

The August expenditures are $326,842 under the $1,173,842 spent in August, 1941, and $1,041,764 under the August, 1940, figure of $1,888,764. Two years ago there were 85,069 recipients and a year ago 45,353 on the rolls.

For the first eight months of the year the total expenditures were estimated at $8,594,756, or $3,478,763 under the $12,073,519 spent in a like period of 1941.

Japs Well Trained For Jungle War

Nip Fighters Live Off Land
And Each Appears As Walking Arsenal

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 9—The diabolical cunning of the Japanese soldier has been enhanced by years of training for jungle warfare, and the results are seen in the bitter fighting now going on on this island.

The Nipponese fighters actually live off the land and are not burdened with heavy bulky supplies. Their rations are three cups of rice and vitamin tablets. This they are supposed to supplement by what the land offers—fruit, coconuts and wild animals.

Blend With Jungle

The Japanese sniper shaves his head and then paints his skull, face and torso green so that he can blend into invisibility against the jungle background. He is a master at stalking through the dense jungles.

These special jungle troops have hooks fastened on the inside of their boots—like a telephone lineman—so that they can climb trees for concealment and sniping.

Many of them carry flame-throwers, fed by three tanks strapped to their backs. These wicked devices will throw a flame at least 100 feet.

The Japanese jungle fighters also carry hand grenades, wicked looking knives, and some have small two-inch mortars attached (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

Well it's just like he said.

On April 27 he asked Congress to get up a new farm price bill and Congress didn't.

Now he says if Congress doesn't produce by October 1 he will set farm prices himself.

That's fair enough. The present farm program was the administration's baby and if it is time to take it off the bottle it's fair that the administration should do it.

The "ever normal granary," the "parity prices," and all the rest of it came from Henry Wallace, and Claude Wickard has followed in his footsteps.

When the legislation passed, the vote was the vote of Congress, but the voice was the voice of the prophet.

Those were the days of paying farmers not to raise crops, of plowing under the pigs, of taking productive acreage out of production.

Of course farm prices went up—that was the administration idea. If now they are to come down it is proper that the administration should bring them down.

Thought for the day: Legislate in haste, repent at leisure.

BOY BITES TIRE, FATALLY HURT BY EXPLOSION

NEWTON, N. J., Sept. 9—Five year old Donald Ladlee is dead today as the result of one of the strangest accidents on record here.

He was fatally injured when he bit into an automobile tire.

The boy was playing near a parked truck several weeks ago when he saw the bulge of an inflated inner tube protruding through the worn sidewall of a tire. He bit into it and the weakened rubber gave way, sending a powerful gust of air into his mouth.

Among other injuries he sustained was a collapsed lung.

American forces in the South Pacific turned the heat on today in an effort to block Japan's march toward Port Moresby.

Ground forces locked at three points, but it was significant that the Nipponese apparently were halted from the Owen Stanley Ridge en route to Moresby.

Other infantry battles were in progress at Mubo, 10 miles south of Salamaua where the Japs landed last week and in the cleaning up tasks about Milne Bay.

Tons of bombs were unloaded upon the Nipponese in a trio of aerial attacks.

One enemy destroyer was reported damaged off Tolbiad Islands, southeast of New Guinea.

A communique issued by General MacArthur's headquarters stated that two more Nipponese warships were caught near Normanby Islands, 50 miles northeast of Milne Bay. Results of the attack were undetermined.

Allied planes, otherwise, blasted the Nipponese air base at Buna.

Germany, meanwhile, continued to be on the receiving end of the blitz warfare in Europe. Frankfurt and other points in the German Rhineland were hit in a heavy night attack by RAF bombers, the air ministry announced.

On the Eastern front, Nazi Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's legions had moved closer to Stalingrad.

The Soviet communique admitted that the Red army was forced to withdraw to new defense positions west of the city, but that, subsequently, resistance stiffened and hurled back the Nazi assaults.

DEFENSERS MAY SEIZE PRIVATE FLAME FIGHTERS

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9 — The state defense council may seize privately-owned fire equipment to combat fires resulting from air raids, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert ruled today.

The council, Herbert held, also can order municipal and township fire companies, including volunteer units, to go wherever needed, but cannot enforce its order if there be refusal.

Herbert pointed out there was no provision for reimbursing a subdivision for use of its fire equipment.

WINSTON CHURCHILL JOINS UNITED STATES MARINES

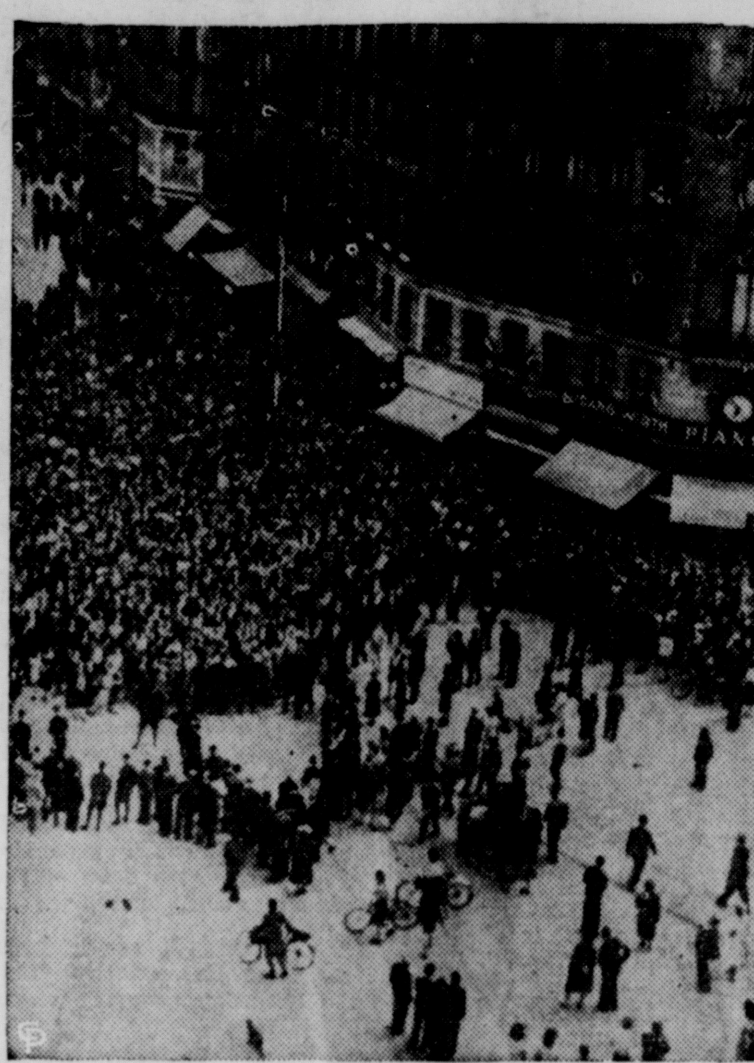

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 9—Winston Churchill was a new enlistee today in the U. S. Marines.

He is 21 years old, a steel worker, and no relation to his famous namesake, the British prime minister. However, Churchill, the steel worker, has corresponded with Winston Churchill, the Briton.

In fact, he received a letter of congratulations from the British Winston Churchill when he, the American Churchill, celebrated his ninth birthday.

Collaborationists of the Vichy French government would have the world believe co-operation with Germany is best for conquered France. However, it would appear from the photo above that a large segment of the French population thinks otherwise. Following an appeal by Gen. 15 Per Cent Pay Tax To Be Proposed To Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—A new treasury proposal to sharply boost individual income tax rates, with a withholding or pay-roll tax of perhaps 15 percent, was to be submitted to the Senate Finance Committee today.

The treasury suggestion for an upward revision of income tax rates was made to the committee following tentative adoption of a $3,650,000,000 "victory tax" program, based on a modified gross income tax.

The committee, after adopting the gross income tax, asked the treasury to consider means of combining the gross levy with the new individual income tax rates carried in the House bill.

Changes Suggested

Treasury tax experts, it was disclosed, made these suggestions to the committee: cut individual income tax exemptions to $500 for a single person, $1,000 for a married person and $250 for each child. Increase normal tax from 4 to 11 percent, coupled with a withholding tax rate of 15 percent.

In addition, however, it was suggested that this blow might be softened by postponing part of the increase in normal tax until next year, and cut 10 points off each bracket in the individual income tax on this year's taxes.

Randolph E. Paul, treasury general counsel, and his aides were to work over this plan and report to the committee.

There was a possibility, members said, that the gross income tax might be dropped if it were worked into increased individual income tax rates.

Gross Tax Favored

Sens. Taft (R) Ohio and Byrd (D) Va., were leading the fight to abandon the "victory tax" plan in favor of increases in the individual income tax rates. Both vigorously supported a general retail sales tax. Taft, however, sought to modify the Guffey sales tax by exempting food. The motion lost on a 9 to 9 vote.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Joseph R. "Yellow Kid" Weil, known far and wide as a confidence man par excellence, collected an honest debt today. His debtor was none other than Uncle Sam.

Currently awaiting trial on a charge of fleeing two women out of a large sum of money, the Yellow Kid complained to jail authorities that he had not been given the customary "honorarium" of $10 when he was discharged a few months ago from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

When U. S. Marshal William H. McDonnell was told, he expressed possibly justified skepticism. But investigation established that Weil's story was true. The result was that the aging Yellow Kid now has a $10 check, sent by the Treasury department.

G. H. Cooney, 35, of Springfield, a contractor at the Lockbourne air base, was fined $100 and costs, $50 suspended, Wednesday by Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges after the squirrel found him guilty of driving when intoxicated.

Cooney paid and was released. He was lodged in the jail at 11 p. m. Tuesday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff after Cooney's automobile had struck a utility pole opposite the residence of Harry Baum, Harrison township. The pole was snapped in two places and Cooney's car was damaged, but the driver escaped without injury.

Baum lives on the Bulen road which runs north and south from the airport into Pickaway county. Cooney was riding alone at the time of the accident.

SHIP TOWED INTO PORT

Commander Plays Daring Role

To Subdue Flames

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The Navy announced today that the former luxury liner Manhattan, now a naval transport, was severely damaged at sea but that 1,000 passengers and its crew, estimated at 600 or 700, were saved. Renamed the U. S. S. Wakefield, the 24,289 ton liner caught fire at sea on September 3, but the Navy said it has now been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic port.

The ship was enroute to an east coast port in convoy when fire of undetermined origin broke out on one of the deck levels and spread rapidly throughout the ship.

All Hands Safe

The Navy said that according to preliminary reports all passengers, many of them civilians, and the crew were safe although several were reported injured.

"As flames enveloped the vessel, it became necessary to remove passengers, a large number of whom were civilians," the Navy statement added.

"Two U. S. warships moved directly alongside the Wakefield to effect removal of these passengers," the announcement said. "A cruiser maneuvered its bow alongside the stern of the big transport and a destroyer placed itself along the side. At these close quarters more than 1,000 passengers rapidly were transferred from the blazing vessel to safety aboard the warships."

In addition to the 1,000 passengers, it was estimated that the naval crew of the huge former liner totaled between 600 and 700.

Ship In Convoy

"The Wakefield, under the command of Commander Harold Gardner Bradbury, (of the Coast Guard) was enroute to an east port in convoy when fire of undetermined origin broke out on one of the deck levels, and despite efforts to subdue it, spread rapidly throughout the ship," the statement continued.

Following removal of the passengers, the officers and crew of the Wakefield remained aboard in an effort to extinguish the blaze.

"Their efforts were unsuccessful, however, and it soon became necessary for them to transfer to the cruiser, temporarily abandoning the ship to stand by," the Navy stated.

"When the intensity of the fire had decreased somewhat, Comdr. Bradbury led a special fire-fighting party back aboard the Wakefield and then succeeded in getting the flames under control.

Towed To Port

"Tugs and salvage craft had been summoned to the scene and successfully instituted towing operations on their arrival. They delivered the Wakefield to an Atlantic port."

QUICKIE STRIKE HALTS WORK AT WAR FACTORY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9—The war production of the P. A. Geier company continued at a standstill today as 130 striking AFL machinists failed to report for work.

Wage demands involving 20 employees—10 women and 10 men—which Matthew Demore, president of the district union, said could be settled "inside 15 minutes," were given as the cause for the "quickie" strike that began yesterday morning.

The dispute was in the hands of federal labor conciliators when the walkout occurred, and company officials said the strike was not anticipated.

RELIEF COSTS FOR OHIO DROP TO RECORD LOW

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9—Ohio's relief expenditures for August probably hit a new all-time low due to the continued upswing of wartime employment. Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said today on the basis of incomplete reports from 108 of the state's 154 local relief areas.

Sherwood estimated the August cost of $847,000, or a nine percent drop from the previous low established only a month earlier, when $939,639 was expended. The case load also decreased from 29,889 recipients in July to approximately 29,200 last month.

The August expenditures are $326,842 under the $1,173,842 spent in August, 1941, and $1,041,764 under the August, 1940, figure of $1,888,764. Two years ago there were 85,069 recipients and a year ago 45,353 on the rolls. For the first eight months of the year the total expenditures were estimated at $8,594,756, or $3,478,763 under the $12,073,519 spent in a like period of 1941.

Japs Well Trained For Jungle War

Nip Fighters Live Off Land And Each Appears As Walking Arsenal

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 9—The diabolical cunning of the Japanese soldier has been enhanced by years of training for jungle warfare, and the results are seen in the bitter fighting now going on on this island.

The Nipponese fighters actually live off the land and are not burdened with heavy bulky supplies. Their rations are three cups of rice and vitamin tablets. This they are supposed to supplement by what the land offers—fruit, coconuts and wild animals.

Blend With Jungle

The Japanese sniper shaves his head and then paints his skull, face and torso green so that he can blend into invisibility against the jungle background. He is a master at stalking through the dense jungles.

These special jungle troops have hooks fastened on the inside of their boots—like a telephone lineman—so that they can climb trees for concealment and sniping.

Many of them carry flamethrowers, fed by three tanks strapped to their backs. These wicked devices will throw a flame at least 100 feet.

The Japanese jungle fighters also carry hand grenades, wicked looking knives, and some have small two-inch mortars attached (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

Well it's just like he said.

On April 27 he asked Congress to get up a new farm price bill and Congress didn't.

Now he says if Congress doesn't produce by October 1 he will set farm prices himself.

That's fair enough. The present farm program was the administration's baby and if it is time to take it off the bottle it's fair that the administration should do it.

The "ever normal granary," the "parity prices," and all the rest of it came from Henry Wallace, and Claude Wickard has followed in his footsteps.

When the legislation passed, the vote was the vote of Congress, but the voice was the voice of the prophet.

Those were the days of paying farmers not to raise crops, of plowing under the pigs, of talking productive acreage out of production.

Of course farm prices went up—that was the administration idea. If now they are to come down it is proper that the administration should bring them down.

Thought for the day: Legislate in haste, repent at leisure.

BOY BITES TIRE, FATALLY HURT BY EXPLOSION

NEWTON, N. J., Sept. 9—Five year old Donald Ladlee is dead today as the result of one of the strangest accidents on record here.

He was fatally injured when he bit into an automobile truck tire. The boy was playing near a parked truck several weeks ago when he saw the bulge of an inflated inner tube protruding through the worn sidewall of a tire. He bit into it and the weakened rubber gave way, sending a powerful gust of air into his mouth.

Among other injuries he sustained was a collapsed lung.

Nazi Forces Moving Closer To Stalingrad — Axis Smarts From Near East Wounds

By International News Service American forces in the South Pacific turned the heat on today in an effort to block Japan's march toward Port Moresby.

Ground forces locked at three points, but it was significant that the Nipponese apparently were halted from the Owen Stanley Ridge en route to Moresby.

Other infantry battles were in progress at Mubo, 10 miles south of Salamaua where the Japs landed last week and in the cleaning up tasks about Milne Bay.

Tons of bombs were unloaded upon the Nipponese in a trio of aerial attacks.

One enemy destroyer was reported damaged off of Tobi Island, southeast of New Guinea.

Jap Warships Tagged

A communique issued by General MacArthur's headquarters stated that two more Nipponese warships were caught near Normanby Islands, 80 miles northeast of Milne Bay. Results of the attack were undetermined.

Allied planes, otherwise, blasted the Nipponese air base at Buna.

Germany, meanwhile, continued to be on the receiving end of the blitz warfare in Europe. Frankfurt and other points in the German Rhineland were hit in a heavy night attack by RAF bombers, the air ministry announced.

On the Eastern front, Nazi Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's legions had moved closer to Stalingrad.

The Soviet communique admitted that the Red army was forced to withdraw to new defense positions west of the city, but that, subsequently, resistance stiffened and hurled back the Nazi assaults.

DEFENSERS MAY SEIZE PRIVATE FLAME FIGHTERS

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9—The state defense council may seize privately-owned fire equipment to combat fires resulting from air raids, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert ruled today.

The council, Herbert held, also can order municipal and township fire companies, including volunteer units, to go wherever needed, but cannot enforce its order if there be refusal.

Herbert pointed out there was no provision for reimbursing a subdivision for use of its fire equipment.

WINSTON CHURCHILL JOINS UNITED STATES MARINES

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 9—Winston Churchill was a new enlistee today in the U. S. Marines.

He is 21 years old, a steel worker, and no relation to his famous namesake, the British prime minister. However, Churchill, the steel worker, has corresponded with Winston Churchill, the Briton.

In fact, he received a letter of congratulations from the British Winston Churchill when he, the American Churchill, celebrated his ninth birthday.

SO FRENCHMEN LIKE NAZI RULE!

Collaborationists of the Vichy French government would have the world believe co-operation with Germany is best for conquered France. However, it would appear from the photo above that a large segment of the French population thinks otherwise. Following an appeal by Gen. 15 Per Cent Pay Tax To Be Proposed To Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—A new treasury proposal to sharply boost individual income tax rates, with a withholding or pay-roll tax of perhaps 15 percent, was to be submitted to the Senate Finance Committee today.

The treasury suggestion for an upward revision of income tax rates was made to the committee following tentative adoption of a $3,650,000,000 "victory tax" program, based on a modified gross income tax.

The committee, after adopting the gross income tax, asked the treasury to consider means of combining the gross levy with the new individual income tax rates carried in the House bill.

Changes Suggested

Treasury tax experts, it was disclosed, made these suggestions to the committee: cut individual income tax exemptions to $500 for a single person, $1,000 for a married person and $250 for each child. Increase normal tax from 4 to 11 percent, coupled with a withholding tax rate of 15 percent.

In addition, however, it was suggested that this blow might be softened by postponing part of the increase in normal tax until next year, and cut 10 points off each bracket in the individual income tax on this year's taxes.

Randolph E. Paul, treasury general counsel, and his aides were to work over this plan and report to the committee.

There was a possibility, members said, that the gross income tax might be dropped if it were worked into increased individual income tax rates.

Gross Tax Favored

Sens. Taft (R) Ohio and Byrd (D) Va., were leading the fight to abandon the "victory tax" plan in favor of increases in the individual income tax rates. Both vigorously supported a general retail sales tax. Taft, however, sought to modify the Guffey sales tax by exempting food. The motion lost on a 9 to 9 vote.

Currently awaiting trial on a charge of fleeing two women out of a large sum of money, the Yellow Kid complained to jail authorities that he had not been given the customary "honorarium" of $10 when he was discharged a few months ago from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

When U. S. Marshal William H. McDonnell was told, he expressed possibly justified skepticism. But investigation established that Well's story was true. The result was that the aging Yellow Kid now has a $10 check, sent by the Treasury department.

LUXURY LINER CATCHES FIRE IN U. S. CONVOY

1000 Passengers And 600 To 700 Crew Members Taken Aboard Cruiser, Destroyer

SHIP TOWED INTO PORT

Commander Plays Daring Role In Returning To Craft To Subdue Flames

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The Navy announced today that the former luxury liner Manhattan, now a naval transport, was severely damaged at sea but that 1,000 passengers and its crew, estimated at 600 or 700, were saved. Renamed the U. S. S. Wakefield, the 24,289 ton liner caught fire at sea on September 3, but the Navy said it has now been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic port.

The ship was enroute to an east coast port in convoy when fire of undetermined origin broke out on one of the deck levels and spread rapidly throughout the ship.

All Hands Safe

The Navy said that according to preliminary reports all passengers, many of them civilians, and the crew were safe although several were reported injured.

"As flames enveloped the vessel, it became necessary to remove passengers, a large number of whom were civilians," the Navy statement added.

"Two U. S. warships moved directly alongside the Wakefield to effect removal of these passengers," the announcement said.

"A cruiser maneuvered its bow alongside the stern of the big transport and a destroyer placed itself along the side. At these close quarters more than 1,000 passengers rapidly were transferred from the blazing vessel to safety aboard the warships."

In addition to the 1,000 passengers, it was estimated that the naval crew of the huge former liner totaled between 600 and 700.

Ship In Convoy

"The Wakefield, under the command of Commander Harold Gardner Bradbury, (of the Coast Guard) was enroute to an east port in convoy when fire of undetermined origin broke out on one of the deck levels, and despite efforts to subdue it, spread rapidly throughout the ship," the statement continued.

Following removal of the passengers, the officers and crew of the Wakefield remained aboard in an effort to extinguish the blaze.

"Their efforts were unsuccessful, however, and it soon became necessary for them to transfer to the cruiser, temporarily abandoning the ship to stand by," the Navy stated.

"When the intensity of the fire had decreased somewhat, Comdr. Bradbury led a special fire-fighting party back aboard the Wakefield and then succeeded in getting the flames under control."

Towed To Port

"Tugs and salvage craft had been summoned to the scene and successfully instituted towing operations on their arrival. They delivered the Wakefield to an Atlantic port."

QUICKIE STRIKE HALTS WORK AT WAR FACTORY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9—The war production of the P. A. Geler company continued at a standstill today as 130 striking AFL machinists failed to report for work.

Wage demands involving 20 employees—10 women and 10 men—were given as the cause for the "quickie" strike that began yesterday morning.

The dispute was in the hands of federal labor conciliators when the walkout occurred, and company officials said the strike was not anticipated.

were taken to City hospital where it was said they would recover.

Mrs. Welch told authorities that Mrs. Weston was in her home, an apartment building, at the time of the crash and undoubtedly was buried in the debris.

Fire Chief Stanley Shaw immediately ordered the firemen to dig into the ruins in an attempt to find other possible victims.

Shortly after the crash yesterday afternoon Army officers from Columbus arrived at the scene and started an investigation.

The plane, a twin motored bomber from Wright field, appeared over the city before noon enroute to Mitchell field, N. Y., according to Army authorities at the base.

Leap To Death

Glenn Heider, a Newark motion picture theatre employee, said the bomber was flying at about 800 feet when suddenly two men leaped out. One was identified later as Lieut. Lawyer. The other fell on the roof of an apartment house owned by Dr. Lewis Mitchell and crashed through the roof into the apartment of Mrs. Mary Davis.

Losing altitude rapidly, the bomber, according to Heider, lurched toward the north and flew half a mile along Third street, then crashed into the home of E. J. Emonds, tearing off the upper part of the building. The craft then plunged into the roof of Mrs. Weston's apartment building, its gasoline tank breaking loose and exploding.

The blast shattered the apartment house and two other nearby buildings, one the home of Dr. Jones which was set afire.

"TO HORSE! TO HORSE!" NEW CRY OF COAST GUARD

After all these years, something really new is being added to the lexicon of American sailors. These new words and phrases include such things as "Prepare to mount," "Mount," "Gallop," and "horse"—not the sea variety either. While emphasis is being placed on mechanization in modern warfare, the United States Coast Guard for the first time in its history has organized "cavalry," horse patrols like the one pictured above that will guard the long stretches of lonely beach along the coasts.

In the Middle East, the Axis still smarted from wounds inflicted during Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's futile effort to smash through to Suez. Allied forces, on the other hand, had a new supply of tanks ready to throw into the battle.

Command headquarters in the desert campaign emphasized that only a few score American tanks had participated in the fight last week. Most of the men who saw action, moreover, soon will be sent back to the United States to help train America's ever-growing tank troops.

The second front, as usual, remained a leading topic of discussion, and latest fuel for the fire came from Wendell Willkie. In Ankara, Willkie suggested that Mediterranean area, including Italy, may be the Allies entry to the continent.

One of the favorite Japanese tricks is to lure men into woods where an ambush of snipers is hidden in the trees. Another is to lie flat until the foe passes and then rise and shoot him in the back.

The terrain around Kokoda and Myola, where the Japanese are pressing toward the gap in the Owen Stanley mountains, is the wildest and most difficult in the world. The mountains are so steep that one can climb only by clinging to trees and vines that line the precipitous slopes.

The ground is treacherously slippery and greasy with decayed vegetation.

Brown revealed that a canvass of congressional sentiment indicated that abolition of the 110 percent of parity farm price ceiling would have to be coupled with either authority or direction to the President to stabilize wages.

Several bases for stabilization were considered, but it was reported authoritatively that the tentative decision is to base the stabilization as of September 1.

That Extra Something!

... You can spot it every time

LIKE "winning a letter", keeping out in front of the others takes an extra something. Coca-Cola has it, —in taste... in quality... in refreshment.

The finished art that comes from 57 years of practice goes into the making of Coca-Cola. A special blend of flavor-essences merges all the ingredients of Coca-Cola into a unique, original taste of its own.

Everybody recognizes this clean, exciting quality taste in Coca-Cola. There are many ways to quench your thirst, but only Coca-Cola refreshes like Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing... the real thing... "a single thing coming from a single source, and well known to the community".

were taken to City hospital where it was said they would recover.
Mrs. Welch told authorities that Mrs. Weston was in her home, an apartment building, at the time of the crash and undoubtedly was buried in the debris.
Fire Chief Stanley Shaw immediately ordered the firemen to dig into the ruins in an attempt to find other possible victims.
Shortly after the crash yesterday afternoon Army officers from Columbus arrived at the scene and started an investigation.
The plane, a twin motored bomber from Wright field, appeared over the city before noon enroute to Mitchell field, N. Y., according to Army authorities at the base.

Leap To Death
Glenn Heider, a Newark motion picture theatre employee, said the bomber was flying at about 800 feet when suddenly two men leaped out. One was identified later as Lieut. Lawyer. The other fell on the roof of an apartment house owned by Dr. Lewis Mitchell and crashed through the roof into the apartment of Mrs. Mary Davis.
Losing altitude rapidly, the bomber, according to Heider, lurched toward the north and flew half a mile along Third street, then crashed into the home of E. J. Emonds, tearing off the upper part of the building. The craft then plunged into the roof of Mrs. Weston's apartment building, its gasoline tank breaking loose and exploding.
The blast shattered the apartment house and two other nearby buildings, one the home of Dr. Jones which was set afire.

"TO HORSE! TO HORSE!" NEW CRY OF COAST GUARD

After all these years, something really new is being added to the lexicon of American sailors. These new words and phrases include such things as "Prepare to mount," "Mount," "Gallop," and "horse"—not the sea variety either. While emphasis is being placed on mechanization in modern warfare, the United States Coast Guard for the first time in its history has organized "cavalry," horse patrols like the one pictured above that will guard the long stretches of lonely beach along the coasts.

NAZI AVIATORS ORDERED TO GET B-17 BOMBERS

Flying Fortresses Believed To Have Rocked Morale Of Hun Airmen

U. S. FIGHTERS JUBILANT

"We've Got Their Number Now" Say Sky Fighters in U. S. Uniforms

A U. S. BOMBER BASE, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 9—Nazi airmen have been ordered to "get" the big American B-17 bombers, in the opinion of the intrepid lads who fly the flying fortresses and who also believe today that they have rocked the morale of the German air force.

The American fliers are convinced that their bull's-eye bombing and ferocious fighting power, demonstrated in recent raids over occupied France and other Nazi-held territories, has had a definite disturbing effect on the Germans.

Got Their Number
"We've got their number now," commented Maj. Paul Tibbets, Jr., 1629 Southwest 6th street, Miami, in expressing a consensus of the men I interviewed here at the rambling, camouflaged home of the flying fortresses.

Major Tibbets, who is 27, was chief pilot of the raid that blasted at Rotterdam and resulted in a record bag of 12 Nazi fighter planes in a single day.

Lieut. John C. Summers, 25, Lexington, Tenn., agrees with Tibbets that the morale of enemy sky fighters has been severely shaken by performances of the giant fortresses.

Summers described the attack on Meaulte, in northern France, where the B-17 outfit sustained the loss of two planes, their first in twelve battles with Nazi fighters.

No German Prizes

Fact that the Germans have failed to bring down even one of the fortresses so they could examine its engines and armor was conceded as a contributory factor to the Nazis' perturbed state of mind.

Summers revealed that the two planes downed in the Meaulte foray fell out of the enemy's reach.

"We encountered 50 to 60 fighters over Meaulte Sunday," the lieutenant said. "Obviously, Goering gave the strictest orders to his crack squadrons to get a fortress. Undoubtedly the Nazis are awed by the fortresses and wonder how they are made."

SPEEDING AUTO THREATENS LIFE OF LITTLE GIRL

Six-year-old Nancy Jo Cromley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cromley of Harrison township, today is the luckiest little girl in Pickaway county.

She escaped with only a few bruises and slight shock in an automobile collision involving three cars, all of which were greatly damaged.

Nancy Jo was sitting on the running board of the automobile of Harry L. Manning, Harrisonburg, Tuesday afternoon, the car being parked beside the home of her father, when the speeding 1937 Cadillac sedan owned and driven by James White of 1217 Pine street, Detroit, crashed into the Manning vehicle. The little girl was knocked off the running board and under the car.

She started to crawl, she told sheriff's deputies, and wasn't aware of what had happened until she reached the safety of her home.

White, a Ford plant worker, was enroute to Chillicothe to pick up his wife who had been staying there with a sister. She was to return to Detroit with him. The driver told authorities that as he drove down Walters hill, which is just north of the Walnut creek bridge, the driver in front of him braked his car and White said that he also braked his.

The White car started to slide sideways, went off the road, across the berm against two cars parked beside the Cromley home. First machine hit was the 1941 Dodge owned by Harry Liff of London. The Liff car was struck on the side and was forced against the Manning car, the Liff vehicle being damaged on both sides. White's car then struck the Manning auto.

Sheriff's Deputies Bryan Custer and Vern Pontious said the White car skidded 52 paces before it came to a stop. They said both Liff and Manning are state highway department employees.

White was fined $25 and costs by Squire B. T. Hedges for reckless operation. He paid the fine. Three hitchhikers he was hauling with him escaped from the crash without injury. They left before authorities could reach the scene.

Witnesses told the deputies White was traveling about 80 miles an hour.

Poets always said there was gold in dandelions, and now rubber people are finding it out.

Mrs. Minnie Snyder and Cleona Dunnick accompanied by Miss Mary Kerns of Columbus enjoyed a trip of three days thru the blue grass section in Kentucky viewing the main places of interest around Lexington, Bardonia and Louisville.

Ashville Plenty of large, fine quality corn and potatoes everywhere about in all directions and already talk is heard of holding another Corn Festival here later in the season. The show last Fall was a great success especially in the exhibit line of corn and vegetables. Also the fancy work exhibit attracted much praise and attention.

Ashville Civil engineer M. C. Chamberlain, wife and their three children, Ylanda, Raquel and Carlos were visitors here Monday at the home of V. H. and Mrs. Prushing, their old time neighbors when they were residents of Ashville. Mr. Chamberlain is in the Army as a First Lieutenant and is located at Fort Knox, Ky., his family residing near there.

Ashville The venerable Benson Custer, 90, and a resident of near Marcy for several years, is now at home in the County Seat. He is the father of Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer. . . Miss Marguerite Hoover employed in a clerical position at the Lockbourne air base for some time and who went with the contracting crew to another construction job near Kansas City, was needed here on this later construction work, is now at home and up at the Air Base again seeing that that bookkeeping work is properly done. . . Tommy Rife, for a long while with Carl Reid as a gas station operator on Long street, is now employed at the Pickaway Power Plant, Harrison township. Marion Glick is filling the vacant place at the Reid gas station.

Ashville The mailing address of Charles G. Baker, is Camp Wolters, Texas, 11th Regiment. . . Born to Robert and Mrs. Baustum, White Cross hospital, the 3rd, inst., a son, Thomas Allen. The maternal grandparents are Harry and Mrs. Brown, West Main street. . . Miss LaVera Traub, the daughter of Edward and Mrs. Traub is a recent student at Mt. Vernon Academy.

Ashville The annual Sherman reunion was held last Sunday at the home of Claude Herron near Canal Winchester with near one hundred present 15 of these from Indiana and two from California. The newly elected officers are Charles Sherman, president; Augustus Udsinger, vice president; Bettie Sherman, secretary; Claude Herron, treasurer.

Ashville Clyde Brinker, the local distributor of privileges to keep the autos and the kind moving, began operations early yesterday morning issuing drivers' licenses. The first three of these issued were to Army service men, James Alexander, George Gardner, Herman Petty. Next three to civilians, were Frank Conrad, A. E. Cooper, Lloyd Baum. Away late yesterday evening and yet at it, Mr. Brinker told us that he couldn't give us the exact number he had issued but knew for a certainty that it was a whole lot, more than double written on the first sale day last year. Miss Geneva Partee, daughter of Guy and Mrs. Partee, is assisting in the clerical work. She is a product of the local high school commercial department, Nolan Murphy, teacher.

Ashville The village council was in session Tuesday evening with all the official family present except Ernest Martin who was out of town with his family, on lake fish-trip. Bills were paid amounting to $449.87. Mayor Hines reported $49 in collections for August, forty-three of these dollars were for fines and 6 for licenses. Deputy Marshall Cecil Scott collected $43

AUSSIES BRIGHTEN UP

AT LAST those insistent and cantankerous Australians are satisfied about something. A lat. dispatch from Melbourne says the deliveries of Allied combat planes in the Southwest Pacific in the last five months have surpassed the Aussies' wildest hopes, and things look brighter there than anybody expected when they were doing so much hollering for help.
Supplies and troops have poured in,
mostly from this country.

"Nothing is more remarkable," says Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt, "than the magnificent recovery of the United States fleet after the attack on its capital ships at Pearl Harbor." He pays special tribute to hard-hitting Admiral Ernest J. King, head of the U. S. Naval operations, and re-joices in the demonstration of what the Admiral promised him earlier in the year:
"I don't care what or where the fighting areas are, I'll hit this fellow wherever we can get at him, and I'll hit him good and hard."

The Aussies might have known that Uncle Sam and his fighting men wouldn't let them down. Now that everything seems hunky-dory again, the world brightens somewhat, both here and down under.

BUILDING A NEW WORLD

THERE is a rather surprising amount of discussion going on now in this country about the way to prevent another war.
And perhaps it is worth while, even if most people do insist on winning this war before tackling the next one.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in a discussion with an international assembly of students, insists that "the determination of present-day youth that this shall not happen again" will go a long way toward insuring peace.
"In the last war," she says, "youth did not think deeply about the causes of the war, nor formulate any objectives for peace.
The result was that, through sins of omission and commission, we brought on another war."

It is well to start youth thinking about these things as deeply as their experience and foresight enable them to think. But thoughtful people of middle age, who can "look before and after," are more likely to trust this next job of reconstruction to experienced leaders like Churchill, Stalin, Chiang Kai Shek and Mrs. Roosevelt's husband.

"In a great country there is no such thing as a little war," said the famous Duke of Wellington.

FARMERS TO CURB RISE

WASHINGTON — Before he delivered his message on wage and price stabilization, the President had a significant behind-the-scenes talk with Jim Patton, head of the National Farmers Union.

The President wanted to get the farmers' reaction before he made his speech, especially from the smaller grass-roots farmers. So he asked Gardner Jackson to bring in Patton, who represents thousands of small farmers. Accompanying him were Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, and Jackson.

The President told Patton he had definite plans for curbing the increase of farm prices and asked his opinion.

"The farmers will go along with you,
Mr. President," Patton replied, "provided you give the nation two crutches to walk on. But so far you've given us only one crutch. You've tried to limit farm prices and labor's wages, but you haven't done anything about industrial profits. And while wages and farm prices have gone up a little, the profits of factories and munitions makers have gone up 400 percent."

"I can assure you the farmers will go along with you on anything of benefit to the nation," Patton continued. "They'll limit their profits and be glad to make any sacrifice to win the war. But they won't do it willingly if they see big business making enormous profits out of the war."

CONGRESS DAWDLED

Roosevelt replied by telling how he had asked Congress last January to pass a tax bill limiting all incomes to $25,000.
But he said Congress had dawdled and delayed until no tax bill had been passed yet, and there was nothing in the tax bill even approaching his plan of limiting incomes.

Then the President cited the case of an Englishman who had come to see him and told him his annual income was $500,000, but that after paying taxes he had $22,000 left. However, the Englishman was only too glad to have even that much.

"You can tell that story to the newspapermen when you go out," the President added.

Later, Roosevelt called Patton to the White House again, this time with the heads of the Farm Bureau, the Grange, and other farm leaders.

"What happened to that story I told you about the Englishman and his taxes?"
the President asked. "I didn't see it in the newspapers."

"I gave it to the press, on the doorstep of the White House," Patton replied, "and also told them about the spread between industrial profits and farm-labor profits.
But as far as I could see only two newspapers carried it."

Note: —Roosevelt did not mention the name of the taxpaying Englishman, but friends understand it was Lord Beaverbrook who last January lectured the President and various other administrationites

Causes and Treatment Of Various Head Pains

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE mentioned pains in the muscles, joints, tendons and also foot pain in articles this week.
We go on to discuss the commonest kind of pain of all—headache or

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

head pain. As in the case of the foot the head is subject to pain often because there are so many structures in the head area that are constantly used and that need a very delicate balance and adjustment so that they will operate smoothly.

For instance, we all know fatigue headaches. You have been going about all day working so hard you haven't time to notice whether or not your eyes move from one side to the other on the average of at least twice a second.
That is 360 times in the three hour session.

Your ears are constantly assailed with a variety of strange noises—bangs, shrieks, scrapes, pounds or just plain noises.

Other Causes of Fatigue

You have nodded your head heaven knows how many times, turned to look to right or left and spoken several thousand words,
all requiring muscular motion.

Your nose has been assailed with a number of different odors and it has become the receptacle for quite a quantity of street dirt. Is it any wonder that the head bears the brunt of the fatigue reaction of all this activity and that you have a fatigue headache? It is unquestionably the commonest form of headache.

Any kind of poison or toxin seems to go to the head first and headache is reliably the first indication of a cold or a fever.

These are all occasional or acute headaches. The chronic headache is not so easy to deal with or to explain. The common chronic headache, as Dr. Hugh Patrick, of Chicago, used to tell his students, is not an ache at all.

The patient will describe it as a pressure, or fullness, or feeling of emptiness, or dragging, or dizziness, or unsteadiness, or tension or flickering, or feeling as if the head contained a liquid which changed its level at each movement and so on ad infinitum. These neurotic headaches are easier to describe than to cure. Medicines are no good for them, in fact should be avoided. Psychological treatment is best.

Migraine

The other form of chronic headache is migraine, or sick headache.
It is recurrent and comes in spells and runs in families. Nobody knows what causes it.

It begins in young adult life and usually disappears in middle age.
It never kills, that is one thing to be said in its favor. Most patients have their own system of treatment. As I wrote some time ago a number of people tell me that if they do not drink water during or before the attack it shortens it. They usually know when the attack is coming on and they stop drinking water as soon as these symptoms appear.

These ideas of laymen have recently received official confirmation from Dr. Temple Fay, of Philadelphia, who believes that congestion causes a stretching of the membranes and if the water consumption is cut off the amount of blood in the sinuses of the head is reduced and hence the stretching is lessened.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Worried Mother: My son of 18 has a few cavities in his teeth the size of a pin point. Should I allow the dentist to fix them immediately or wait till they get larger?

Answer: Nothing is more important for your child's future than to fill the cavities immediately. They may go down and involve the nerve and destroy the tooth so it will have to be pulled and destroy the whole arch of the mouth.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

LUNCHEON WAS eaten very swiftly, it seemed to Barbara. She ate warm fruit cocktail, tepid tomato soup and rubbery steak as if it were her last meal on earth, tasteless but necessary to attaining another world, and then, having wrapped herself in a kind of protective coma, realized that the waiters were pouring coffee, that the room was blue with smoke and Howard Temple was on his feet introducing her.

Get up, Bow. Fix your eyes somewhere in space and begin. That was the formula. She got over the first three parts as she had practiced at home, but when the speech began, it was not the speech that she'd learned.

From far away—a whole planet
it seemed—she heard her own voice beginning: "From the first day that I came to South Wintridge a few years ago, I wanted to be an integral part of it." . . . Other phrases came. . . . "The beginning of any relationship, whether it is to be a personal or a business one,
must be based on reciprocity. . . .
Not what you sell or buy, but what you give to each other equally. . . .
There is no such thing as a small town in business. Everything is in ratio. . . . Wherever you find success you find those who want and those who serve. . . . The secret of successful American community life is based on this simple principle. . . . Phrases she had not known she meant to say went together into a speech that had a ring of truth and utter conviction.

Thunderous applause, of which she was only dimly conscious, filled the room. She was wondering if her sore was as shiny as it felt.
Once more, with the aid of watery knees, she got to her feet, smiled a glazed smile, and sat down.

The next speaker was introduced and gradually her mind began to function and her body felt once more as if it belonged to her.

She reached for a glass of ice water and lifted it to her lips, allowing her glance above its rim to sweep the room.

Directly across from her she saw Tom Kilcran.

He was looking at her.
She meant to nod and that would be all. But she smiled and saw his smiling answer, after which fleeting exchange she turned to Howard Temple to ask for a light for her cigarette.

Temple said something to her about how did it feel to be a businessman.

She told him that it was very nice, all except "making speeches and going to the bank for a loan."

Nervousness made her bring the latter up; she hadn't meant to at all.

Temple looked at her anxiously.
"You're not going to hold that against us, Mrs. Wister? You come in any time now and I'm sure you'll find us co-operative."

The men were getting up at the other tables. Barbara drew on her gloves. She looked up.

Tom Kilcran was weaving his way through the tables, coming toward her with unmistakable direction in his progress.

If there'd been one other woman in the room, she would have snapped her vanity open and powdered her nose, but a fine thing it would be to do that just because Tom Kilcran was coming to her side. Was there—

While she said, "How do you do," in nice, cool, even tones, she noted the fine texture of his dark blue suit, the way his white collar fitted his big throat, his maroon tie—and the obvious pleasure in his eyes.

It was pleasure, a kind of delight at seeing her that needed no words to tell her it was there.

She said, "It's nice to see you."
. . . It's been quite a long time, hasn't it?

"Very long," he said, with the slightest emphasis on the first word.

She felt her cheeks warm, was immediately embarrassed because of it, and thought for a moment that was why he looked at her so peculiarly. But almost instantly her woman's instinct read surprise and approval in his eyes and knew it was because she appeared very different now in her chic frock and hat than she had the night of the carnival.

Her own stock went up and she said, "Nice luncheon, wasn't it?"

"Nice speech," he answered.

This was followed by a little pause in which she murmured,
"Thank you."

"Can I give you a lift? My car's at the door."

"Oh, thanks, but it's only three blocks. I . . . I think I'll walk."
She didn't know which would be sillier, to ride or to make a situation of it.

"Good idea. I need some exercise," he answered readily. "Besides, I want to talk to you. About Pam."

"Oh, Pam," she said brightly.
"Do tell me about her. I miss her."

"She misses you, too, I'm sure."

"Are you really?" she said in the same bright voice, thinking, "Noel Coward wouldn't think much of this dialogue."

"Very sure. She's particularly fond of you . . . Barbara," her name slipped out so naturally. Neither noticed it. "I'm troubled about my youngster."

"But why?"

"She writes that she's 'fed to the teeth' with Bar Harbor. It isn't like her to want to come back to a slow little town like this when she could be having a lot of fun elsewhere.
Her mother has a big place there,
you know."

Didn't Kilcran know that Pamela and Tony were showing all signs of falling in love? Barbara wondered.

"I suppose Pam told you about the . . . er . . . circumstances of her mother bringing her back east last autumn?"

Pamela hadn't, but Barbara murmured something that might pass for either a yes or no.

"It seems she's eating her heart out for a lad in Santa Fe. Was engaged to him last summer. Her mother didn't think she was old enough, or something."

Barbara said, "She's pretty young."

"Not too young to know what she wants." He was going to say that Claire wasn't much older when she married him but, thinking that Claire obviously hadn't known her own mind, he let it go.

"At first I was going to take it lightly, but now I'm beginning to worry. This wanting to come back here and—as she says—
'keep house' for me, is a bad sign.
I'm wondering if I shouldn't invite this chap to come east and take a look at him."

"Oh, no, not without asking Pam first," she blurted impulsively.
"You might find . . ." Her voice trailed off. She couldn't very well say that Pamela wasn't the kind of a girl who'd be in love with two men at one time. And unless she'd misread all the signs, she could read adoration in Pamela's eyes for Tony. About Tony she was not so sure.

Tom chuckled. "Anyway, I've a surprise for her. Poor little kid, we must have been mighty stern parents. The post office sent up a bundle of letters from Mexico addressed to a Miss Betty Brown, with a note saying, 'Pam'd been picking them up herself. She must have been afraid for us to know she was writing to him. I'm saving them for her.'"

A bright red flag of danger
waved wildly in Barbara's mind.
She had an idea that whatever reason Pamela had for getting letters she didn't want her family to know about, it was NOT because she was afraid to have her family know she was writing love letters. Pam wasn't afraid of anything. And she had reasons for everything she did.

AUSSIES BRIGHTEN UP

AT LAST those insistent and cantankerous Australians are satisfied about something. A lat dispatch from Melbourne says the deliveries of Allied combat planes in the Southwest Pacific in the last five months have surpassed the Aussies' wildest hopes, and things look brighter there than anybody expected when they were doing so much hollering for help. Supplies and troops have poured in, mostly from this country.

"Nothing is more remarkable," says Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt, "than the magnificent recovery of the United States fleet after the attack on its capital ships at Pearl Harbor." He pays special tribute to hard-hitting Admiral Ernest J. King, head of the U. S. Naval operations, and rejoices in the demonstration of what the Admiral promised him earlier in the year: "I don't care what or where the fighting areas are, I'll hit this fellow wherever we can get at him, and I'll hit him good and hard."

The Aussies might have known that Uncle Sam and his fighting men wouldn't let them down. Now that everything seems hunky-dory again, the world brightens somewhat, both here and down under.

BUILDING A NEW WORLD

THERE is a rather surprising amount of discussion going on now in this country about the way to prevent another war. And perhaps it is worth while, even if most people do insist on winning this war before tackling the next one.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in a discussion with an international assembly of students, insists that "the determination of present-day youth that this shall not happen again" will go a long way toward insuring peace. "In the last war," she says, "youth did not think deeply about the causes of the war, nor formulate any objectives for peace. The result was that, through sins of omission and commission, we brought on another war."

It is well to start youth thinking about these things as deeply as their experience and foresight enable them to think. But thoughtful people of middle age, who can "look before and after," are more likely to trust this next job of reconstruction to experienced leaders like Churchill, Stalin, Chiang Kai Shek and Mrs. Roosevelt's husband.

"In a great country there is no such thing as a little war," said the famous Duke of Wellington.

FARMERS TO CURB RISE

WASHINGTON — Before he delivered his message on wage and price stabilization, the President had a significant behind-the-scenes talk with Jim Patton, head of the National Farmers Union.

The President wanted to get the farmers' reaction before he made his speech, especially from the smaller grass-roots farmers. So he asked Gardner Jackson to bring in Patton, who represents thousands of small farmers. Accompanying him were Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, and Jackson.

The President told Patton he had definite plans for curbing the increase of farm prices and asked his opinion.

"The farmers will go along with you, Mr. President," Patton replied, "provided you give the nation two crutches to walk on. But so far you've given us only one crutch. You've tried to limit farm prices and labor's wages, but you haven't done anything about industrial profits. And while wages and farm prices have gone up a little, the profits of factories and munitions makers have gone up 400 percent."

"I can assure you the farmers will go along with you on anything of benefit to the nation," Patton continued. "They'll limit their profits and be glad to make any sacrifice to win the war. But they won't do it willingly if they see big business making enormous profits out of the war."

CONGRESS DAWDLED

Roosevelt replied by telling how he had asked Congress last January to pass a tax bill limiting all incomes to $25,000. But he said Congress had dawdled and delayed until no tax bill had been passed yet, and there was nothing in the tax bill even approaching his plan of limiting incomes.

Then the President cited the case of an Englishman who had come to see him and told him his annual income was $500,000, but that after paying taxes he had $22,000 left. However, the Englishman was only too glad to have even that much.

"You can tell that story to the newspapermen when you go out," the President added.

Later, Roosevelt called Patton to the White House again, this time with the heads of the Farm Bureau, the Grange, and other farm leaders.

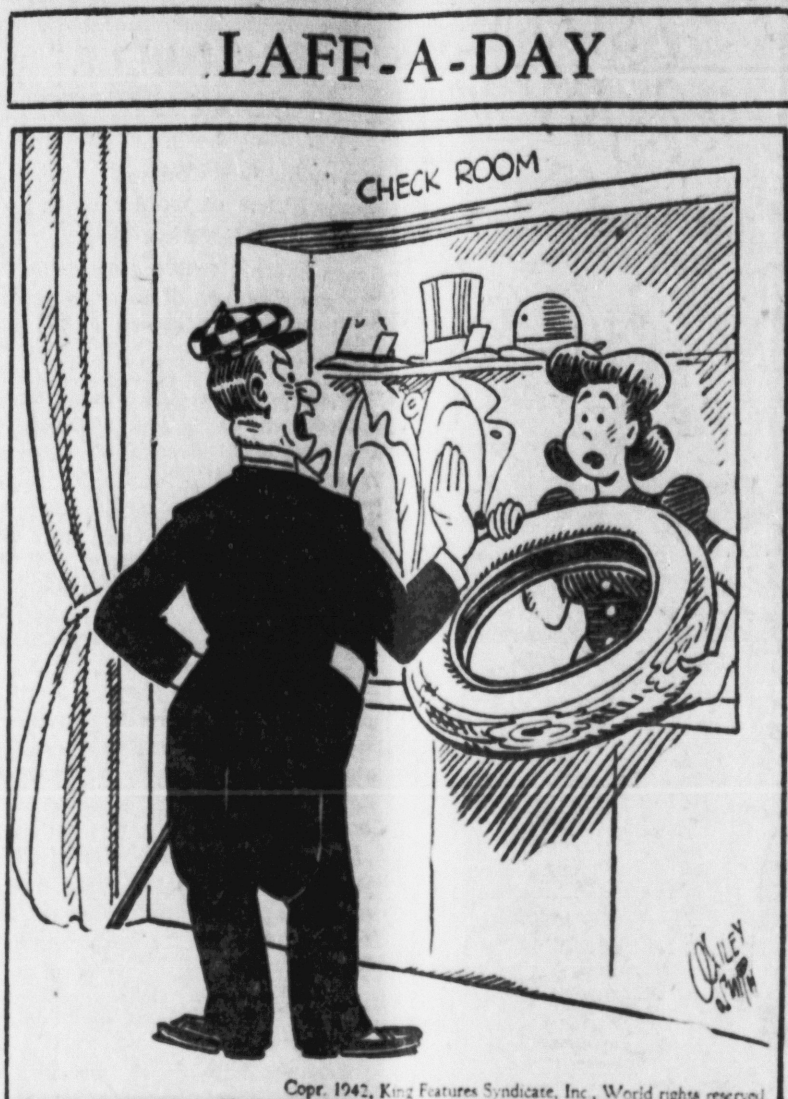

"What happened to that story I told you about the Englishman and his taxes?" the President asked. "I didn't see it in the newspapers."

"I gave it to the press, on the doorstep of the White House," Patton replied, "and also told them about the spread between industrial profits and farm-labor profits. But as far as I could see only two newspapers carried it."

Note:—Roosevelt did not mention the name of the taxpaying Englishman, but friends understand it was Lord Beaverbrook who last January lectured the President and various other administrationites.

Causes and Treatment Of Various Head Pains

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE mentioned pains in the muscles, joints, tendons and also foot pain in articles this week. We go on to discuss the commonest kind of pain of all—headache or head pain. As in the case of the foot the head is subject to pain often because there are so many structures in the head area that are constantly used and that need a very delicate balance and adjustment so that they will operate smoothly.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

For instance, we all know fatigue headaches. You have been going about all day working so hard you haven't time to notice whether there is any headache beginning or not. Your eyes move from one side to the other on the average of at least twice a second. That is 360 times in the three hour session.

Your ears are constantly assailed with a variety of strange noises—bells, shrills, scrapes, pounds or just plain noises.

Other Causes of Fatigue

You have nodded your head heaven knows how many times, turned to look to right or left and spoken several thousand words, all requiring muscular motion.

Your nose has been assailed with a number of different odors and it has become the receptacle for quite a quantity of dirt. Is it any wonder that the head bears the brunt of the fatigue reaction of all this activity and that you have a fatigue headache? It is unquestionably the commonest form of headache.

Any kind of poison or toxin seems to go to the head first and headache is reliably the first indication of a cold or a fever.

These are all occasional or acute headaches. The chronic headache is not so easy to deal with or to explain. The common chronic headache, as Dr. Hugh Patrick, of Chicago, used to tell his students, is not an ache at all.

The patient will describe it as a pressure, or fullness, or feeling of emptiness, or dragging, or dizzy-ness, or unsteadiness, or tension or flickering, or feeling as if the head contained a liquid which changed its level at each movement and so on ad infinitum. These neurotic headaches are easier to describe than to cure. Medicine are no good for them, in fact should be avoided. Psychological treatment is best.

Migraine

The other form of chronic headache is migraine, or sick headache. It is recurrent and comes in spells and runs in families. Nobody knows what causes it.

It begins in young adult life and usually disappears in middle age. It never kills, that is one thing to be said in its favor. Most patients have their own system of treatment. As I wrote some time ago a number of people tell me that if they do not drink water during or before the attack it shortens it. They usually know when the attack is coming on and they stop drinking water as soon as these symptoms appear.

These ideas of laymen have recently received official confirmation from Dr. Temple Fay, of Philadelphia, who believes that congestion causes a stretching of the membranes and if the water consumption is cut off the amount of blood in the sinuses of the head is reduced and hence the stretching is lessened.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. I carried Mother: My son of 18 has a few cavities in his teeth the size of a pin point. Should I allow the dentist to fix them immediately or wait till they get larger?

A. Answer: Nothing is more important for your child's future than to fill the cavities immediately. They may go down and involve the nerve and destroy the tooth so it will have to be pulled and destroy the whole arch of the mouth.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

LUNCHEON WAS eaten very swiftly, it seemed to Barbara. She ate warm fruit cocktail, tepid tomato soup and rubbery steak as if it were her last meal on earth, tasteless but necessary to attaining another world, and then, having wrapped herself in a kind of protective coma, realized that the waiters were pouring coffee, that the room was blue with smoke and Howard Temple was on his feet introducing her.

Get up. Bow. Fix your eyes somewhere in space and begin. That was the formula. She got over the first three parts as she had practiced at home, but when the speech began, it was not the speech that she'd learned.

From far away—a whole planet it seemed—she heard her own voice beginning: "From the first day that I came to South Wintridge a few years ago, I wanted to be an integral part of it." . . . Other phrases came. . . . "The beginning of any relationship, whether it is to be a personal or a business one, must be based on reciprocity. . . . Not what you sell or buy, but what you give to each other equally. . . . There is no such thing as a small town in business. Everything is in ratio. . . . Wherever you find success you find those who want and those who serve. . . . The secret of successful American community life is based on this simple principle. . . . Phrases she had not known she meant to say went together into a speech that had a ring of truth and utter conviction.

Thunderous applause, of which she was only dimly conscious, filled the room. She was wondering if her face was as shiny as it felt. Once more, with the aid of watery knees, she got to her feet, smiled a glazed smile, and sat down.

The next speaker was introduced and gradually her mind began to function and her body felt once more as if it belonged to her.

She reached for a glass of ice water and lifted it to her lips, allowing her glance above its rim to sweep the room.

Directly across from her she saw Tom Kilcran.

He was looking at her. She meant to nod and that would be all. But she smiled and saw his smiling answer, after which fleeting exchange she turned to Howard Temple to ask for a light for her cigarette.

Temple said something to her about how did it feel to be a businessman.

She told him that it was very nice, all except "making speeches and going to the bank for a loan."

Nervousness made her bring the latter up; she hadn't meant to at all.

Temple looked at her anxiously. "You're not going to hold that against us, Mrs. Wister? You come in any time now and I'm sure you'll find us co-operative."

The men were getting up at the other tables. Barbara drew on her gloves. She looked up.

Tom Kilcran was weaving his way through the tables, coming toward her with unmistakable direction in his progress.

If there'd been one other woman in the room, she would have snapped her vanity open and powdered her nose, but a fine thing it would be to do that just because Tom Kilcran was coming to her side. Was there—

While she said, "How do you do," in nice, cool, even tones, she noted the fine texture of his dark blue suit, the way his white collar fitted his big throat, his maroon tie—and the obvious pleasure in his eyes.

It was pleasure, a kind of delight at seeing her that needed no words to tell her it was there.

She said, "It's nice to see you. . . . It's been quite a long time, hasn't it?"

"Very long," he said, with the slightest emphasis on the first word. She felt her cheeks warm, was immediately embarrassed because of it, and thought for a moment that was why he looked at her so peculiarly. But almost instantly her woman's instinct read surprise and approval in his eyes and knew it was because she appeared very different now in her chic frock and hat than she had the night of the carnival.

Her own stock went up and she said, "Nice luncheon, wasn't it?"

"Nice speech," he answered.

This was followed by a little pause in which she murmured, "Thank you."

"Can I give you a lift? My car's at the door."

"Oh, thanks, but it's only three blocks. I . . . I think I'll walk." She didn't know which would be sillier, to ride or to make a situation of it.

"Good idea. I need some exercise," he answered readily. "Besides, I want to talk to you. About Pam."

"Oh, Pam," she said brightly. "Do tell me about her. I miss her."

"She misses you, too, I'm sure." "Are you really?" she said in the same bright voice, thinking, "Noel Coward wouldn't think much of this dialogue."

"Very sure. She's particularly fond of you . . . Barbara,"—her name slipped out so naturally, Nel-ther noticed it. "I'm troubled about my youngster."

"But why?" "She writes that she's 'fed to the teeth' with Bar Harbor. It isn't like her to want to come back to a slow little town like this when she could be having a lot of fun elsewhere. Her mother has a big place there, you know."

Didn't Kilcran know that Pamela and Tony were showing all signs of falling in love? Barbara wondered.

"I suppose Pam told you about the . . . er . . . circumstances of her mother bringing her back east last autumn?"

Pamela hadn't, but Barbara murmured something that might pass for either a yes or no.

"It seems she's eating her heart out for a lad in Sante Fe. Was engaged to him last summer. Her mother didn't think she was old enough, or something."

Barbara said, "She's pretty young."

"Not too young to know what she wants." He was going to say that Claire wasn't much older when she married him but, thinking that Claire obviously hadn't known her own mind, he let it go.

"At first I was going to take it lightly, but now I'm beginning to worry a trifle. This wanting to come back here—and as she says, 'keep house' for me, is a bad sign. I'm wondering if I shouldn't invite this chap to come east and take a look at him."

"Oh, no, not without asking Pam first," she blurted impulsively. "You might find . . . Her voice trailed off. She couldn't very well say that Pamela wasn't the kind of a girl who'd be in love with two men at one time. And unless she'd misread all the signs, she could read adoration in Pamela's eyes for Tony, about Tony she was not so sure.

Tom chuckled. "Anyway, I've a surprise for her. Poor little kid, we must have been mighty stern parents. The post office sent a bunch of letters from Mexico addressed to a Miss Betty Brown, with a note saying Pam'd been picking them up herself. She must have been afraid for us to know she was writing to him. I'm saving them for her."

A bright red flag of danger waved wildly in Barbara's mind. She had an idea that whatever reason Pamela had for getting letters she didn't want her family to know about, it was NOT because she was afraid to have her family know she was writing love letters. Pam wasn't afraid of anything. And she had reasons for everything she did.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—

Charles F. Stewart

FOR AN ordinary, unofficial individual to hint at a suspicion that considerable hysteria is responsible for much of the talk of enemy spying activities in our midst isn't very safe for the citizen who risks saying so. He's apt to get himself accused of disloyalty of his own, attracting the investigator's attention to himself and making his life miserable.

Francis Biddle

Attorney General Francis Biddle expresses himself on the subject, however, as a cabinet member, making a formal report to congress, with a good bit of authority.

The justice department's head referred especially to charges of an extensive un-American movement in the ranks of governmental employees.

The federal bureau of investigation, headed by J. Edgar Hoover, of his department staff, has probed more than 4,500 of these cases, certified to it from various sources, and ascertained that nine-tenths of them were pure waste of time and money to bother with, according to the attorney general.

He doesn't deny that there may be a modicum of subversion (by one in 10 of the suspects pointed to) but his thesis is that the FBI had better be left to devote itself to real espionage instead of being distracted in so many directions that don't require the slightest bothering with.

The FBI, he intimates, will do a better job left to itself than if it is annoyed by so much amateur detective work.

It is a fact that charges of espionage are far more prevalent now than they were during the last war. Probably it's because enemy governments' secret agencies are greatly better organized today than they were then. There also is the greatly increased number in the mixture of "isms". Some folks are mildly "ismatic" who aren't outright disloyal. They say things that get them into disrepute with 100-percenters.

At the present moment there's a pending political campaign which makes for unpleasant remarks back and forth.

Illustratively, Representative Martin Dies, star congressional investigator of enemy subversion in the United States, took a mean crack at Attorney General Biddle in answer to the latter's complaint of wildcat investigation. Biddle mentioned him, by name, as having turned in a huge percentage of ridiculous accusations. Congressman Dies' answer is that Biddle is less interested in winning the war than in winning the November election.

Biddle and Dies are of the same political party, by the way, but Martin had to make some sort of a come-back and that was the first thrust that occurred to him. It was inconsistent, but so is the whole controversy, generally.

As to this coming election, the fact is that Democrats quarrel more bitterly among themselves than Democrats quarrel with Republicans.

The Republicans' story is that they want to win in November for the purpose of doing a more effective job of war-winning than the Democrats are doing. The Democrats disagree as to what THEIR administration is accomplishing.

Emmett's Chapel Aid Society Backs C. C.

Donation Of $15 First Reported By County

Emmett's Chapel Aid society reports a donation of $15 to the Pickaway County Community Chest, action being taken Tuesday at the September session of the society at the home of Mrs. Harrison Wolfe, Pickaway township. Mrs. Cora Rader Hood explained in detail the plans for the War Chest and the society voted its donation at the close of her talk. The donation was the first reported in the county.

Mrs. Frank Graves, new president of the society, conducted the business and devotional service which was attended by 23 members. Mrs. E. C. Wilkins, treasurer, made her monthly report.

Mrs. Graves appointed a new finance and improvement committee for the chapel. It is comprised of Mrs. Austin Wilson, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Harrison Wolfe, Mrs. Earl Wolfe, Mrs. George Phillips and Miss Alida Bartley. Mrs. Harry Wright, Miss Gladys Rader and Mrs. Harry Sohn were named members of the calendar committee.

The program arranged by Mrs. Fairy Aldike and Mrs. Charles Baldoser included a reading by Mrs. Bernard W. Young and a contest in charge of Mrs. Baldoser. Refreshments were served during the closing social hour.

Benevolent Association
Discussion of the Pickaway County Community War Chest drive in its relation to the Circleville Benevolent association marked the business hour of that organization Tuesday in the city cottage. Approval was expressed for the unified action in the community. Miss Florence Dunton, president, was in the chair and received the report of Miss Clara Southward, case worker.

An unusual feature of the work of the society was the cutting down of the daily milk distribution, the organization supplying only one family with one quart daily. That was continued because the man of the family was unable to work. All the able bodied men on the milk list have found jobs.

Many calls were received for clothing in spite of the fact that many heads of the families are now working, it being impossible to supply all the needs especially at the opening of school. Fifty-seven families received supplies from the cottage during the month, the clothing and other things coming from 18 donors. Several donations of sales tax stamps were gratefully received.

There are many calls for mattresses, three being answered during August with 13 more on the list. Many quilts and comforts are in process of making, more scraps for others are needed. Many calls were made at the homes of the applicants and 116 office interviews were listed by Miss Southward.

Leist Reunion
The annual reunion of the family of Andrew A. Leist of Washington township was held Labor Day at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Leist, near Mt. Sterling. A picnic dinner was served under the old elms that border the creek near the house.

The afternoon was spent in various outdoor games which were marked by the characteristic bantering and jibbing attendant upon most family gatherings of this nature.

Present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Koenig, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Leist, Virginia Leist and Carol Koenig of Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Uncles and son, Robert, Mrs. Cora Hoover, Joyce Ann Hosler and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Leist of Columbus and the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Leist of Findlay.

Circle 4
Circle 4 of the W. S. C. S. with Mrs. M. F. Parrett as chairman, met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ora Pontius, East Main street. The president conducted the session which opened with group singing of a hymn.

Mrs. B. F. Harden read a poem in honor of Mrs. Herbert Gray, a deceased member of the Circle. A brief prayer by Mrs. Parrett concluded the hour.

Mrs. Lloyd Sprouse, program leader, opened the entertainment

An unusual feature of the work of the society was the cutting down of the daily milk distribution, the organization supplying only one family with one quart daily. That was continued because the man of the family was unable to work. All the able bodied men on the milk list have found jobs.

Many calls were received for clothing in spite of the fact that many heads of the families are now working, it being impossible to supply all the needs especially at the opening of school.

Fifty-seven families received supplies from the cottage during the month, the clothing and other things coming from 18 donors. Several donations of sales tax stamps were gratefully received.

There are many calls for mattresses, three being answered during August with 13 more on the list. Many quilts and comforters are in process of making, more scraps for others are needed.

Many calls were made at the homes of the applicants and 116 office interviews were listed by Miss Southward.

The soloists Evelyn and her magic violin, the bell-toned soprano Vivien and the contralto Maxine, who will be spotlighted in the picture, will present special solos in this broadcast. The hymn of the evening, "Onward Christian Soldiers," is dedicated to the officers and men at Camp Claiborne, La., who voted it their favorite.

CONN JUBILANT OVER NEW SHOT AT JOE'S TITLE

Army Permits Championship Fight October 12 At Yankee Stadium

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—"I'll box him this time. This is the chance I've been waiting for and I'm not going to blow it. I'll win that title, this time, I'm sure of it."

That's what Pvt. Billy Conn, U. S. Army, had to say today about his long-awaited return chance at Corp. Joe Louis, heavyweight title at the Yankee stadium, Columbus day afternoon, October 12, at the Yankee stadium.

"Will you try to knock him out?" asked one of the reporters who had Billy the Kid in the middle of a perfect pincer movement.

The good-looking Pittsburgh boy didn't take long to answer that one. He's had his answer ready since the night of June 18, 1941. The night he had the richest championship in the world in his gloved hands—only to watch it drip through his fingers.

"Oh, no," Billy snapped promptly. "I'm going to box him all the way, this time. I'll try to tire him out, of course, and if he starts going, I'd like to stop him but I won't take any chances. Once was enough."

Conn, as happy as a school kid on vacation eve over the news from his superiors, late yesterday afternoon, said he would visit his Pittsburgh home, within the next 24 hours, return here to attend the all-Army vs. N. Y. Pro Giants charity football game Saturday and then adjourn to Rumson, N. J. where he will begin training Monday, at Promoter Mike Jacobs' former estate.

Weights 185 Now

"I weigh about 185 stripped," said Billy, "and feel great. My left hand is completely healed (he broke it in a kitchen brawl with his father-in-law Jimmy Smith in Pittsburgh last May 11) and after training I ought to come in about 175 or 180 for the fight. I understand Joe weighs about 220 now. That's all right with me. I hope he stays about that."

Down at Ft. Riley, Kansas, Louis, reached by Promoter Jacobs on the long distance phone, echoed Billy's sentiments. "That's great, partner," he told Mike. "I'm ready to fight. I expect to leave here soon and should be in New York Friday morning." Joe admitted his weight was up around the 220 mark but said when idle he always put on extra poundage and wasn't worried about taking it off. He added his Army work has kept him in good shape and that he "hoped this fight wouldn't go as far as the last one."

In their last meeting which drew a gate of $451,743 Conn built up a long lead over the champion and was seemingly on the way to an amazing triumph. He staggered Louis near the end of the twelfth round and, in the thirteenth, disobeyed his manager's instructions and instead of continuing to outbox the champion, tried to knock him out.

Louis, desperate in the realization he was about to lose his crown, caught the wild-swinging Pittsburgh boy with a left hook to the head, followed with a series of terrific one-two punches to the jaw and head and knocked Conn out with dramatic suddenness to save his title.

From that night till approximately 4:30 p. m. yesterday, boxing fans from Jacobs Beach, haunt of boxing's most colorful characters in this city, to the outposts of Australia, fans have been arguing over who was the better man and anxiously awaiting this return match.

The boys expected to meet last June but, after December 7, Louis and Billy entered the Army and, of course, took all their orders from it. Louis, after fighting Billy, knocked out Lou Nova in September and has since engaged in two other defenses of his title.

Tax Check Due

Joe didn't get a cent from either of these shows, in which he kayoed Buddy Baer and Abe Simon for the Army and Navy relief funds—but he did get a bill from the government over a little matter of his income tax for 1941. They said Joseph owed in the neighborhood of $117,000 on this tab and the pressure was on to give the generous colored boy a chance to fight once more for himself—so as he could wipe off this obligation.

The Japs are so busy now "saving face" that they may lose their shirts.

Bruce Smith To Pace Great Lake Backfield

By Leo Fischer

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 9—"It isn't what you used to be, it's what you are today."

That was the refrain Lieut. Paul (Tony) Hinkle was singing today as he watched his brilliant array of football talent battle for places on the 1942 Great Lakes team.

Clipping for clipping, and man for man, there probably is no aggregation of gridders anywhere in the United States that can match the squad of candidates seeking the right to wear the togs of the world's greatest naval station. By past reputation—in college and in pro ranks—they're unbeatable.

What they'll do on the football field this Fall is something else again, hence Coach Hinkle's little refrain. But so far as we are concerned, if Great Lakes doesn't have the best team in football, it's going to be mighty surprising.

First of all, when you have a player like Bruce Smith in your backfield you've got a real star. Add to this No. 1 star of last year a dozen other brilliant and powerful backs like Pete Kmetovic of Stanford, Bob Sweiger of Minnesota, Steve Belichick of Western Reserve, Herman Schneidman of Iowa and similar stalwarts, and you have a backfield which can stand up and actually thrive on the 11-game schedule.

Two Pros On Hand

Eight ends are listed on the squad, none under six feet in height nor under 185 pounds in weight. Two stars of the pro league — Carl Mullenbaux of the Green Bay Packers and Howard

Hickey of the Cleveland Rams—seen to have the starting edge.

The tackles range from 225 to 250 pounds—the latter being the modest program estimate for Urban Odson of Minnesota. Jim Barber, 230-pounder from the Washington Redskins and Ray Busler of the Chicago Cardinals, along with Jim Daniell and Jack Stephenson of Ohio State, Nate Johnson of Illinois and Steve Meade of Kansas, make the tackle situation a coach's delight.

The guards are in the same class. Leading candidates seem to be Ken Robesky, Stanford all-American, and Vic Marino, an all-Big Ten guard at Ohio State.

"Dutch" Levy, 245-pounder from Minnesota, is another pillar of strength.

Top candidates for the center job are Bob Johnson, Sophomore "iron man" at Purdue last year; Bob Nelson of Baylor, who ranked near the top in the pro league with Detroit last season, and Wendell Goldsmith of Emporia, who was on the New York Giant squad.

Will Lead Bishops

Bill Watkins, Delaware senior, a 135-lb. five-foot six-inch hunk of dynamite, will captain Ohio Wesleyan's Battling Bishops this fall. Bill, a veteran of two previous grid campaigns, will play at the quarterback position. Football is in Bill's blood, since he is the son of Don Watkins, now assistant treasurer of the university, who was one of the Red and Black greats back in 1917.

Ohio Wesleyan's schedule reads: Sept. 26, Albion at Delaware; Oct. 3, Bowling Green at Delaware; Oct. 9, Baldwin Wallace at Berea; Oct. 17, Akron at Delaware; Oct. 24, Ohio University at Athens; Oct. 31, Case at Cleveland; Nov. 7, Miami at Delaware; Nov. 14, Boston University at Boston; Nov

Army Permits Championship Fight October 12 At Yankee Stadium

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Sept. 9—"I'll box him this time. This is the chance I've been waiting for and I'm not going to blow it. I'll win that title, this time, I'm sure of it."

That's what Pvt. Billy Conn, U. S. Army, had to say today about his long-awaited return chance at Corp. Joe Louis, heavyweight title at the Yankee stadium, Columbus day afternoon, October 12, at the Yankee stadium.

"Will you try to knock him out?" asked one of the reporters who had Billy the Kid in the middle of a perfect pincer movement.

The good-looking Pittsburgh boy didn't take long to answer that one. He's had his answer ready since the night of June 18, 1941. The night he had the richest championship in the world in his gloved hands—only to watch it drip through his fingers.

"Oh, no," Billy snapped promptly. "I'm going to box him all the way, this time. I'll try to tire him out, of course, and if he starts going, I'd like to stop him but I won't take any chances. Once was enough."

Conn, as happy as a school kid on vacation eve over the news from his superiors, late yesterday afternoon, said he would visit his Pittsburgh home, within the next 24 hours, return here to attend the all-Army vs. N. Y. Pro Giants charity football game Saturday and then adjourn to Rumson, N. J. where he will begin training Monday, at Promoter Mike Jacobs' former estate.

Weights 185 Now

"I weigh about 185 stripped," said Billy, "and feel great. My left hand is completely healed (he broke it in a kitchen brawl with his father-in-law Jimmy Smith in Pittsburgh last May 11) and after training I ought to come in about 178 or 180 for the fight. I understand Joe weighs about 220 now. That's all right with me. I hope he stays about that."

Down at Ft. Riley, Kansas, Louis, reached by Promoter Jacobson on the long distance phone, echoed Billy's sentiments. "That's great, pardner," he told Mike. "I'm ready to fight. I expect to leave here soon and should be in New York Friday morning." Joe admitted his weight was up around the 220 mark but said when idle he always put on extra poundage and wasn't worried about taking it off. He added his Army work has kept him in good shape and that he "hoped this fight wouldn't go as far as the last one."

In their last meeting which drew a gate of $451,743 Conn built up a long lead over the champion and was seemingly on the way to an amazing triumph. He staggered Louis near the end of the twelfth round and in the thirteenth, disobeyed his manager's instructions and instead of continuing to outbox the champion, tried to knock him out.

Louis, desperate in the realization he was about to lose his crown, caught the wild-swinging Pittsburgh boy with a left hook to the head, followed with a series of terrific one-two punches to the jaw and head and knocked Conn out with dramatic suddenness to save his title.

From that night till approximately 4:30 p. m. yesterday, boxing fans from Jacobs Beach, haunt of boxing's most colorful characters in this city, to the outposts of Australia, fans have been arguing over who was the better man and anxiously awaiting this return match.

The boys expected to meet last June but, after December 7, Louis and Billy entered the Army and, of course, took all their orders from it. Louis, after fighting Billy, knocked out Lou Nova in September and has since engaged in two other defenses of his title.

Tax Check Due
Joe didn't get a cent from either of these shows, in which he kayoed Buddy Baer and Abe Simon for the Army and Navy relief funds—but he did get a bill from the government over a little matter of his income tax for 1941.

They said Joseph owed in the neighborhood of $117,000 on this tab and the pressure was on to give the generous colored boy a chance to fight once more for himself—so as he could wipe off this obligation.

GIANT OUTFIT TO TEST CARDS

Twilight Game Scheduled; Big Battle Of Brooklyn Starts Friday

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The fighting St. Louis Cardinals begin their siege of the eastern seaboard—a siege that may see them come to the front in their way for first place—or sink, frustrated and beaten in their hold bid for the National league pennant, here tonight. The Cards, three games back in second place, will meet the Giants in a twilight game at the Polo Grounds and have a chance to pick up the half-game they lost through inactivity yesterday, as the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 4 to 0.

Through a quirk in the schedule, the Cards were off yesterday and will be idle tomorrow, while the Dodgers have today off. On Friday of course, the big battle of Brooklyn between the Bums and the Cards will be waged for forty eight hours.

Yesterday Brooklyn dug in at Ebbets field for the closing weeks of their campaign against the weak sisters of the league, the Phillies, Pirates and the Braves. They have beaten the former 12 out of 15; the Pirates 14 out of 19 and Boston 14 out of 20 times this year, which should give you the idea.

The Cards have won 14 of 21 from the Giants this year but they will have no cinch tonight for the New Yorkers are playing some of the finest ball of the year and are hitting the ball hard.

Ed Head Winner

While St. Louis spent a grateful day of rest the Dodgers, with Ed Head throwing his eighth victory, blanked the Pirates, 4 to 0. Camilli, Vaughan, Owen and Herman struck the most decisive blows in a ten-hit assault on Alton Wilkie and Head had little difficulty coasting to a triumph. It was the only game in the National league.

In the American the Washington Senators came from behind with a ten run assault spread over the sixth, seventh and eighth innings to defeat the Boston Red Sox 15-11 in the first game of a twin bill at Washington. The second game was cancelled.

Another curtailed double-header saw the Cleveland Indians, behind the seven-hit pitching of Rookie Roy Poole, blank the Chicago White Sox, 10-0. The nightcap in this one was also called off.

St. Louis beat the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1 with Steve Sundra throwing a four hitter at Detroit in the loop's only other game. The first place New York Yankees and the last place Philadelphia Athletics were not scheduled.

HERE'S ANOTHER VIEW AT PENNANT CONTEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Here's the National league pennant race at a glance. If the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers win half their remaining 17 games, St. Louis will have to win 13 of their 17 contests to clinch the flag.

Frank Fischer Outlines Plan Of Campaign Aimed At Goal Of $48,680

Definite program for a rally which will be held next Wednesday night to herald the opening of the Pickaway county Community Chest campaign for $48,680 was outlined Tuesday night when chest fund solicitors gathered in the Pickaway county courthouse.

The rally will be held on the Circleville high school athletic field under the football lights starting at 8 o'clock. Its speaker will be Earl Morris of Columbus, an attorney, graduate of Harvard university, past president of Junior Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Franklin county War Chest speakers' bureau.

Frank Fischer, Community Chest chairman, told solicitors that Mr. Morris is widely known as a speaker.

Community Singing

The address will be one of the highlights of the rally, community singing led by Ellis Snyder, Ashville native who is in charge of vocal music at Capital university, being another.

Circleville school band will be together for the first time and efforts are being made to obtain several other bands to participate. An appeal will be made to each school of the county which has a band to have it here that night.

Details concerning the campaign were discussed for solicitors by Mr. Fischer.

Organizations which its anticipated will call on the Community Chest for funds were put in three categories by the chairman. The first group includes those that have already set their goals, including the USO, which asks $5,000; China Relief, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. Second includes agencies which were known last year to have solicited funds and in the third group are placed emergency calls which may arise during the war.

Provision is made in the Community Chest budget for all three classifications.

Payment Provisions

It was pointed out that payments to the Community Chest may be made in a lump sum, in two or three payments or in four quarterly payments. Checks should be made to Robert G. Colville, treasurer of the Community Chest.

A concerted effort will be made to obtain school cooperation, all city and county pupils being expected to play major roles in the campaign both in publicity work and in contributions. Harold J. Bowers of Ashville is in charge of county school program while Mr. Fischer will plan Circleville's participation.

QUESTIONNAIRES SENT DRAFTEES IN LAST CLASS

Pickaway county Selective Service board is preparing to bolster its pool of men eligible for armed service by sending questionnaires to all of the fifth registration who will become 20 years of age on or before September 30.

About 50 questionnaires will be required to line up all boys of the fifth sign up who have not already filled out draft questionnaires and have received notices to report for screening examinations before local physicians.

Under the board's program a large number of 20-year-olds will be sent into service in October, 80 youths out of a total of 101 receiving questionnaires already being classified in I-A.

The 20-year-olds are the only ones in the fifth registration who may be called into service, 18 and 19-year-old youths still being under the draft age although every indication points toward revision of the draft law during the next few months.

MANY CHANGES IN STAFFS OF COUNTY SCHOOLS

Turnover of 36.8 percent in the Pickaway county teaching staff was revealed Wednesday by County Superintendent George D. McDowell when he disclosed that the county corps this fall includes 53 new faces with one person yet to be employed.

Twenty-two changes have been made in the elementary grades and 31 in the high school. The teaching corps numbers 160 persons.

Only two shifts were made within the county, Wilbur Griffith transferring from Walnut to New Holland and P. F. Coggins removing from Muhlenberg to Scioto.

Harold Bowers of Ashville, director of teacher certification of the state department of education, said Tuesday night that schools of 42 counties which opened their classes Tuesday still need 152 teachers.

He made a checkup Tuesday afternoon to determine the extent of the shortage.

Bowers, former Williamsport superintendent, said that most vacancies exist in industrial arts, mathematics, physical education, commercial subjects and sciences in the upper classes.

Failure of schools to match salaries paid in industry has caused the biggest shortage, he said. Selective Service taking not more than 1,500 teachers over the entire state so far, according to his estimates.

EARL WINFOUGH LIKELY TO FACE COURT MARTIAL

Failure of Earl M. Winfough of near Darbyville to report for induction Monday with 59 other Pickaway countians who started their trek to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and assignment for training, means that he will be classed as absent without leave by Army officials and subject to penalty under Army law.

Winfough left supervision of the Pickaway county draft board when he was accepted by the Army medical team two weeks ago in Columbus. He was sworn in at that time and was granted a 14-day furlough. He rates the same penalty as any other soldier who has failed to return from a furlough.

Winfough left his home in Darbyville last Wednesday, a brother told the board, saying that he would return Saturday. He did not return, the draft office was told.

on the light tax burden of the American people.

WAR-TIME WASHINGTON

On a downtown street corner, three sightseeing limousines were lined up, waiting for business. The drivers sat on chairs on the sidewalk, looking ruefully at the passing crowd.

A newsman sauntered up. "How's business?" he asked. "Wonderful!" was the sarcastic reply.

"Have you got enough gas to operate?"

The rejoinder was, "Do you want to go to Mount Vernon? What do you say? Ten bucks. Shrine of the Father of Our Country—ten bucks. Want to go?"

The newsman shook his head.

"Sure," said the driver. "I've got enough gas—but no customers. See all those people?" And he waved his hands to the crowded streets of downtown Washington. "Plenty of people, but they're all busy with the war, nobody wants to see the shrine at Mount Vernon no more."

PLASTIC BARGES

The controversial question of whether steel can be spared for barges to relieve the oil shortage of the East may be on the verge of solution by the scientists of the Navy's Bureau of Shipping. They have discovered how to make barges—believe it or not—out of plastics.

For months the New England states, as well as most of the Atlantic coast, have been clamoring for barges made of wood, or steel or anything with which to haul oil through the inland waterways. These waterways are safe from submarines, cost taxpayers millions of dollars, yet they are relatively unused during a crisis when the open seas contain lurking death.

So far the Maritime Commission has dawdled inexcusably regarding wooden barges. But now the Navy may have the answer. The Bureau of Ships has developed a certain type of plastic, made of lignum, which is sufficiently durable to use in the hulls of small ships.

The plan is still in the experimental stages, but it may be the answer to the oil barge problem.

GENERAL PAT HURLEY

When Brig. Gen. Pat Hurley, U. S. Minister to New Zealand, returned to Washington the other day, he went to call on his old friend Secretary of War Stimson. The two men had served together in the Cabinet of President Hoover, Stimson as Secretary of State and Hurley as Secretary of War.

Hurley gave Stimson his views on problems in the South Pacific, but insisted he didn't want to do any "back seat driving." He did say, however, that he would like to be more in the thick of things.

He had enjoyed the assignment which took him to the East Indies in January, in the effort to run the Japanese blockade with supplies for the men on Bataan. And he had enjoyed the more recent assignment as Minister to New Zealand.

But now he wanted a post not so far removed from the battle lines.

When 75-year-old Stimson heard this, he looked at 59-year-old Hurley in a paternal way, and said, "You've done a good job, Pat, and you have reason to be proud of yourself. But before you leap into the battle, go home and read First Kings, Chapter 20, verse 11."

Hurley went back to his suite in the Mayflower and looked up the passage. It was the passage that Stimson quoted so effectively at his press conference: "And the King of Israel answered and said, Tell him, Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

Freese and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Christy, Joanne and Margaret remained for a week end visit. They returned home Tuesday accompanied by their grandmother and aunt.

JAYCEES TO AID RECRUITING FOR LOCAL DEFENSE

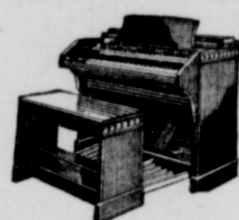

Thirty Junior Chamber of Commerce members pledged themselves Tuesday evening to serve as recruiters in the Circleville Civilian Defense program after hearing Tom E. Wilson, Daily Herald publisher and Civilian Defense chairman, speak on the defense program set up for the district. His subject was "It Can't Happen Here," outlining during the address the many precautions the Defense Council is taking to prevent disaster in case of local war emergency.

Jaycees promised to seek volunteers for various duties under the Civilian Defense program. Volunteers at the present time are needed for air raid warden and fire watcher duties, these two divisions being most difficult for the Council to fill.

Three new members were added Tuesday evening, including H. E. Graef, new manager of the Firestone company store; Elliott White, new manager of the A. and P. store, and Kenneth Dillman of the Ralston-Purina company.

James Yost, Jaycee president, presided at the meeting held in Pickaway Arms and Sheldon Mader was in charge of group singing, Miss Ruth Blum playing the piano.

The plan is still in the experimental stages, but it may be the answer to the oil barge problem.

GENERAL PAT HURLEY

When Brig. Gen. Pat Hurley, U. S. Minister to New Zealand, returned to Washington the other day, he went to call on his old friend Secretary of War Stimson. The two men had served together in the Cabinet of President Hoover. Stimson as Secretary of State and Hurley as Secretary of War.

Hurley gave Stimson his views on problems in the South Pacific, but insisted he didn't want to do any "back seat driving." He did say, however, that he would like to be more in the thick of things.

He had enjoyed the assignment which took him to the East Indies in January, in the effort to run the Japanese blockade with supplies for the men on Bataan. And he had enjoyed the more recent assignment as Minister to New Zealand.

But now he wanted a post not so far removed from the battle lines.

When 75-year-old Stimson heard this, he looked at 59-year-old Hurley in a paternal way, and said, "You've done a good job, Pat, and you have reason to be proud of yourself. But before you leap into the battle, go home and read First Kings, Chapter 20, verse 11."

Hurley went back to his suite in the Mayflower and looked up the passage. It was the passage that Stimson quoted so effectively at his press conference: "And the King of Israel answered and said, Tell him, Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

Freese and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Christy. Joanne and Margaret remained for a week end visit. They returned home Tuesday accompanied by their grandmother and aunt.

JAYCEES TO AID RECRUITING FOR LOCAL DEFENSE

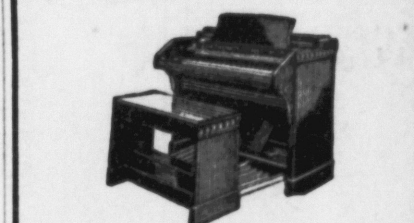

Thirty Junior Chamber of Commerce members pledged themselves Tuesday evening to serve as recruiters in the Circleville Civilian Defense program after hearing Tom E. Wilson, Daily Herald publisher and Civilian Defense chairman, speak on the defense program set up for the district. His subject was "It Can't Happen Here," outlining during the address the many precautions the Defense Council is taking to prevent disaster in case of local war emergency.

Jaycees promised to seek volunteers for various duties under the Civilian Defense program. Volunteers at the present time are needed for air raid warden and fire watcher duties, these two divisions being most difficult for the Council to fill.

Three new members were added Tuesday evening, including H. E. Graef, new manager of the Firestone company store; Elliott White, new manager of the A. and P. store, and Kenneth Dillman of the Ralston-Purina company.

James Yost, Jaycee president, presided at the meeting held in Pickaway Arms and Sheldon Mader was in charge of group singing, Miss Ruth Blum playing the piano.

First we'll land in France and then on Hitler.
